Find the 14,000 men

Campaign tool kit

PROSTATE CANCER UK

What is the campaign?

Due to the pandemic, 14,000 undiagnosed men haven't started urgent prostate cancer treatment. The earlier prostate cancer is caught the easier it is to cure. Finding these men is crucial to save lives.

Prostate Cancer UK is working in partnership with the NHS to find more than 14,000 men in the UK who need treatment for prostate cancer but have not yet come forward for a diagnosis.

Professor Peter Johnson,
National Clinical Director
for Cancer at NHS England

“Prostate Cancer UK’s online risk checker is an excellent tool to give people greater understanding of their level of risk and help them make an informed choice about what actions they can take. The more men we can encourage to use it, the greater impact this campaign can have on catching more prostate cancers early, saving many lives.”

Help find the 14,000 men

We are supporting Prostate Cancer UK and NHS England's campaign to find 14,000 men who have not started treatment for prostate cancer since the beginning of the pandemic.

Share the risk checker and help save lives.

1 in 8 men will get prostate cancer. A dad, brother, uncle, partner or best mate. We think they're worth saving.

That's why Prostate Cancer UK has partnered with the NHS to ask the public to share its 30-second risk checker – to help men understand their risk of prostate cancer.

You can help too. Check your own risk of prostate cancer, or for a loved one now. It takes 30 seconds. Then share Prostate Cancer UK's online risk checker with your network.

Why we're backing Prostate Cancer UK & NHS England's new campaign

Prostate cancer is more common than you think. It's the most common cancer in men. 1 in 8 men will get prostate cancer. That could be a dad, uncle, brother, partner or best friend. It's why Prostate Cancer UK and the NHS have joined forces to launch a campaign to find the 14,000 men who have not started treatment for prostate cancer since the beginning of the pandemic.

Early diagnosis saves lives

New figures show that prostate cancer accounts for a third of those not treated for cancer compared to before the pandemic. Prostate cancer is very treatable if caught early. It's important for men to know their risk because early prostate cancer often has no symptoms.

Joe Appiah, from Bromley, was diagnosed with prostate cancer during the pandemic. He didn't have symptoms. "I'd seen adverts about prostate cancer, but I didn't know how badly black men were affected, or how to get a test. I didn't have symptoms and wasn't aware of any family history. So until my friend told me to speak to my GP, I didn't think about it – especially with Covid too. My friend saved my life. Thanks to him it was caught just in time."

Don't wait for symptoms

I'd seen adverts about prostate cancer, but I didn't know how badly black men were affected, or how to get a test. I didn't have symptoms and wasn't aware of any family history. My friend saved my life. Thanks to him it was caught just in time, when it was still in the prostate. My doctor told me it was ready to escape. If I'd waited a year down the line, until I got symptoms, things would have been very different.

Share with your loved ones

I'm passionate about raising awareness about prostate cancer following my own diagnosis. Whether I'm sharing Prostate Cancer UK beer mats in the pub, wearing my "Man of Men" badge or including messages about the online risk checker in my email signatures – I know this makes a difference, and has encouraged colleagues and friends to take action on their health.
